To: Martin Griffin,

I can't say how much I like you, because I don't. Keep me smiling, because you got 2 more years to go.

Good luck & be happy!

Betz Wencke

To a guy that draws the best-est pictures in the whole wide world, Martin.

Research wouldn't be the same without you, for that matter neither would Biology.
Best wishes in the future.

Be good,

Marven,
Even though you're a Soph. and I a little horsey (1Fr.)
I'd like to wish you luck and thank you for being a good
guy. See you next year.

Luv,
Martha

Martha,

It has been really peachy
Keen with you this year.

Leaders Strive For Bright Future

Principal Mike Dennis checks a voucher with Mrs. Edie Adams, his secretary.

Mr. Hardy Cobb, administrative assistant, and Miss Debbie Johnson inspect a transportation report.

Mr. Gerald Gooch, counselor, assigns Miss Marceia Boyd a test to check.

A long and winding road from student to teacher, to administration, to community, to the world is encompassed in the dreams, plans, and work of the administration of Trenton High School. Complex problems face the board of education and Mr. Ray who, with Mr. Dennis and Mr. Cobb, make myriad decisions necessary to smooth the path for all concerned with education in THS. Friendly, encouraging, and sincerely interested in the students, they give of themselves that students and faculty may establish firm foundations for education in our time. To mediate misunderstanding, to counsel students for future planning, to direct the physical plans, to act as disciplinarian, and to meld all facets of a growing school system rests on the capable shoulders of the administrators of our school.

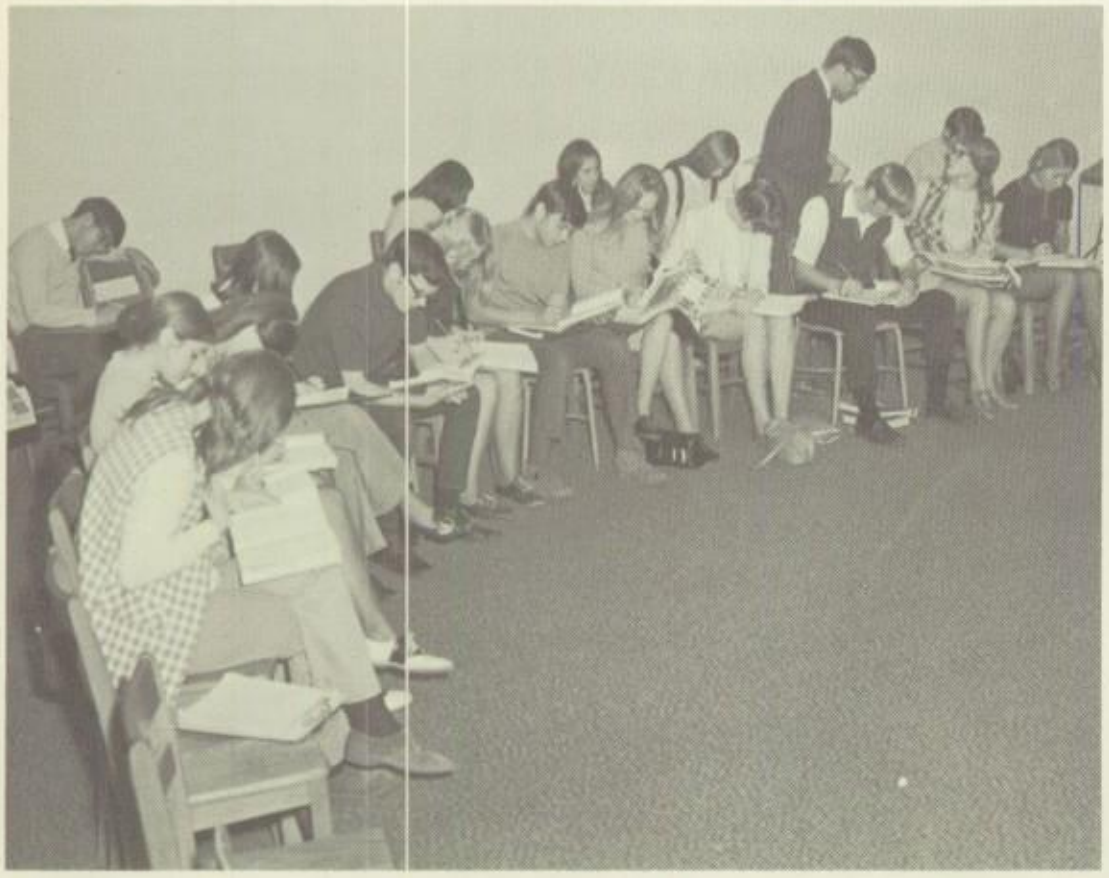
Miss Alma Colman

Mrs. Edith Thomas

Mrs. Celia Vaughn

A library is the heart of all scholastic research, and Miss Colman stops at her counter to help Evelyn Lee locate an article, while in a lower picture she and Mrs. Vaughn examine the stacks to bring them up to date. Speech therapy clears up difficulties as Mrs. Thomas and Stanley Reinholz work at recording and listening for further exercise. Sue Lamme and Carol Holt confer with Mr. Gerald Gooch who administers the testing program for Trenton High School. His work touches each faculty member and student as he guides students into areas of aptitude or serves as liaison between teacher and student.

Students Become Multilingual



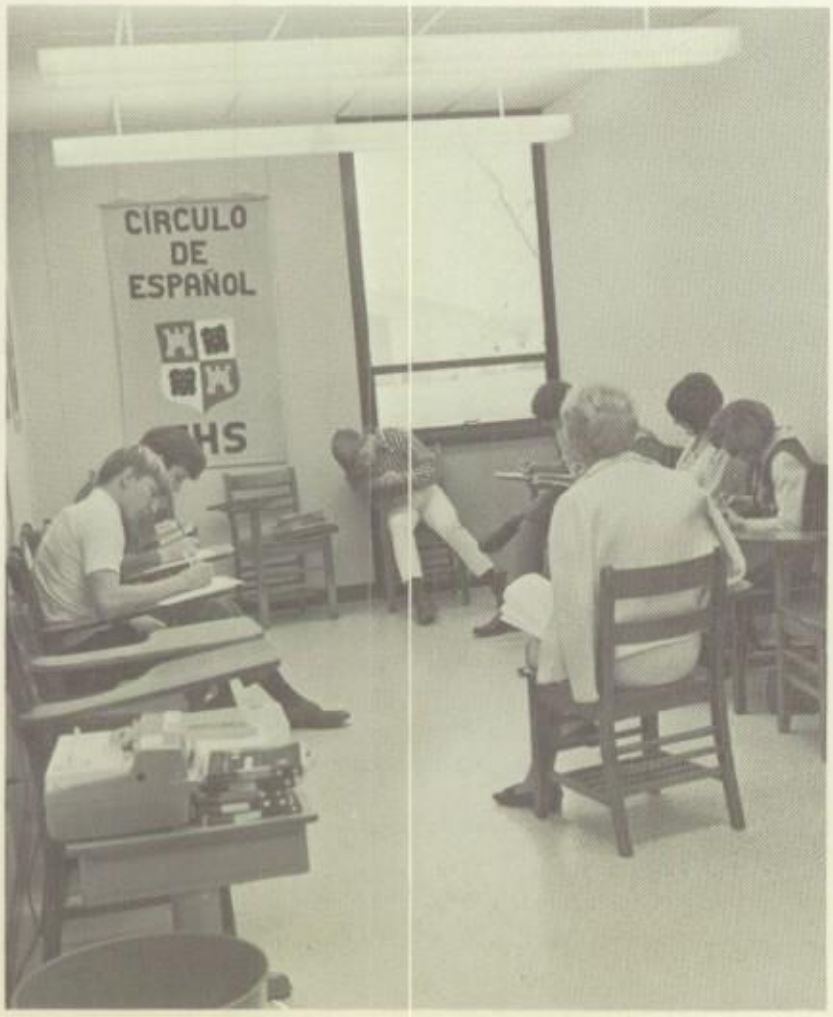
Translating French into English occupies Mr. Brook's class and Brenda Bennett asks him for assistance.

Mrs. Rosamond Connell

Barry Brooks

Mrs. Connell and her Spanish III class admire an attractive pinata to be filled with sweets and broken at a festival.

Taking dictation in Spanish would be difficult for most, but the photographer caught a class making rapid progress as Mrs. Connell reads.



"Hands across the border" (or ocean) are friendly when people know a second language. Verbs are the wheels that move a language. French and Spanish students master them as they listen, speak, and write in a second tongue. Foreign language is attractive because of college entrance requirements, vocations demanding language proficiency, curiosity about customs and cultures of countries next door, and an understanding of people in the interest of peace.

French is new to THS students, and many hope to use their new-found skills in travel, jobs, or service positions. French music, literature, drama, and history broaden their understanding of the world about them.

Spanish I, II, III students move from the simple to the complex, using their abilities in club meetings and fiestas, in talking with foreign students, or in foreign travel.

Business Education

Mrs. Peggy Bradley

Wayne Brassfield

Mrs. Carolyn Wilson

Mrs. Patty Ramsbottom

Business education, an expanding department, offers students skills that set them on the high road to success. Basic business courses expand into office practices involving sophisticated machines and processes. Business law and economics, two new business-related classes, attracted many students who soon can meet life's challenges more competently. Knowledge gained in this department aid some students in furthering their education and provides a livelihood for others. Distributive education and vocational training (Chillicothe) challenge an increasing number each year to participate in the expanding fields of business management, production and services as they are related to the retail market.

Creativity Enriches The Soul

"Take it from bar three," Mr. Hannaford directs as he and his concert band rehearse Alpha and Omega for a concert January 16 in the gym.

Man is enriched through creating art objects in all media, performing instrumental and vocal compositions, and writing and interpreting dramatic roles. All forms are enjoyed by THS students and the community as artists, musicians, and actors exhibit their talents for their own enjoyment and the community's entertainment, thus carrying education's story afar.

Art-filled halls and shows, musical and dramatic assemblies, half-time band shows, drama night and senior play, and instrumental and vocal concerts display the talents of more than one half of the student body. Competition in district contests bring credit to THS, and this year Trenton High School hosted the district music contests. Individuals gain an appreciation and an awareness of man's culture as they reach a broader understanding of their world.

Singing is pure joy in Mr. Frankenfeld's mixed chorus as a few of his students lift their voices.

Mrs. Way helps Art III students, Nancy Brassfield and Paul Costello, with Christmas projects. They have made a happy choice.

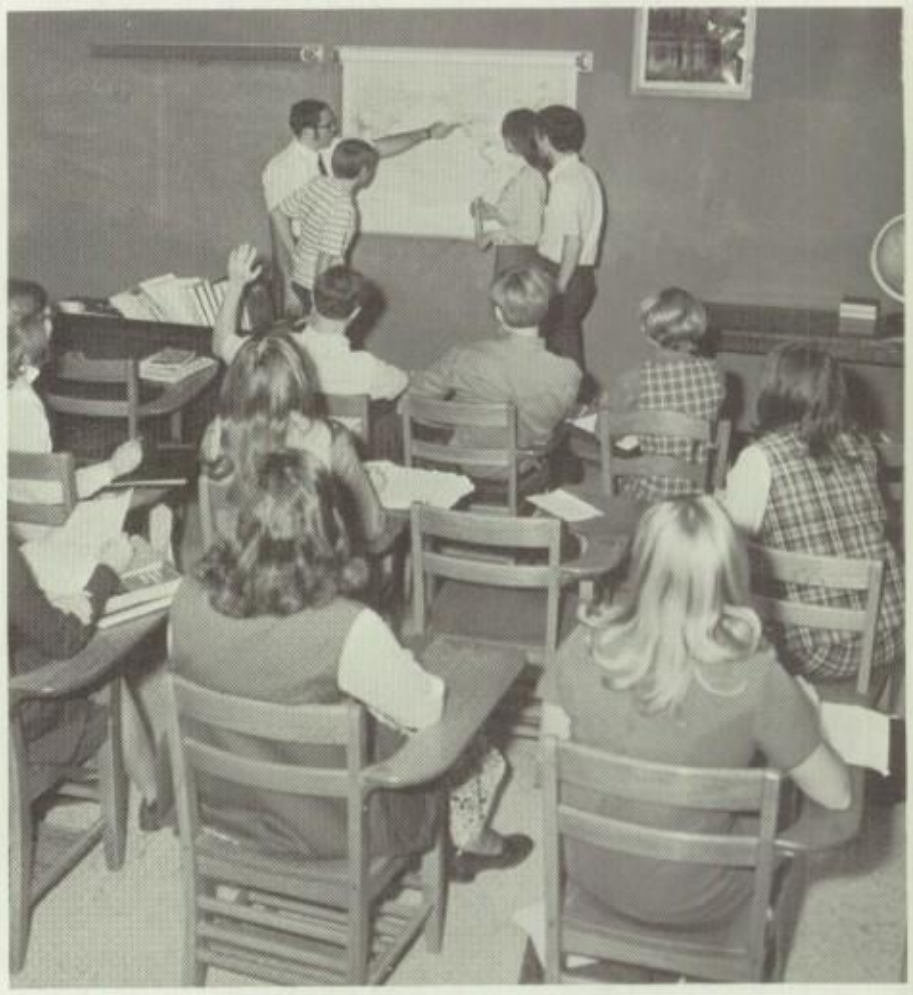
Social Progression

Learning to Meet World Pressures

Mr. Ricono, Karen Hickman, and Gary Ferguson start out on a driving lesson. A large number of students become safe drivers in drivers' education classes.



Mr. McCullough uses a map to make geography as real as the battles of a war or an Olympic meet.

Missouri history group works on a project to learn how state services are obtained.

Checking a test in American history, and Bob Molsbee examines his pen while Marvin Holloway questions Mr. Mullenix about an answer.

Mr. Sparks explains a unit on the educative process soon to be initiated.

Ron McCullough

Junior Mullenix

Ray Ricono

A busy contemporary issues class studies for a test.

History is born in one man's mind. His success or failure rests on his understanding of himself as he seeks to assume a role in a world now shrunk to rest in the palm of his hand. To learn the earth's physical and political divisions and their relation to men as they help shape lives, and to mold civilization from caveman to the complex contemporary world is the challenge to students everywhere.

THS offers courses spanning time from the dawn of time to American and Missouri history, contemporary issues, and world geography, and includes psychology and driver's education. Thus THS graduates may meet adequately and imaginatively complex cultural problems ranging from practicing politics in student council, to governing a vast country, to driving safely along the nation's highways.

Language Arts

Mrs. Alberta Volk

Mr. Sparks lectures on the elements of poetry to his junior class and Terry Walker will need someone's notes. Good notes are essential.

Teachers Speed Communications

Reading, writing, speaking, and listening--communicative tools-mark the progress of mankind and shape his history, as Trenton High School students prepare to accept public and private positions. An understanding of their heritage (via fiction, biography, and drama) guides them in judging the challenges they must face. Every role-student, parent, teacher, businessman, philosopher--demands that man speak and before speaking that he think. Communicative arts provide experience in the application of structure and creative skills. As THS students work in journalism classes, creative writing, college-bound composition, and speech they extend the ideas inspired by literature and language skills.

Pantomiming a scene from "The Lottery," speech students learn to use their imagination and free their bodies. Mrs. Volk uses this technique to teach empathy.

Scott Murray, Jan Kenny, Sarah Tipton, and Tom Kenady practice yearbook layout in Mrs. Volk's journalism I class.

Mr. Seaman's English literature class spends a period in the library researching essays of early writers.

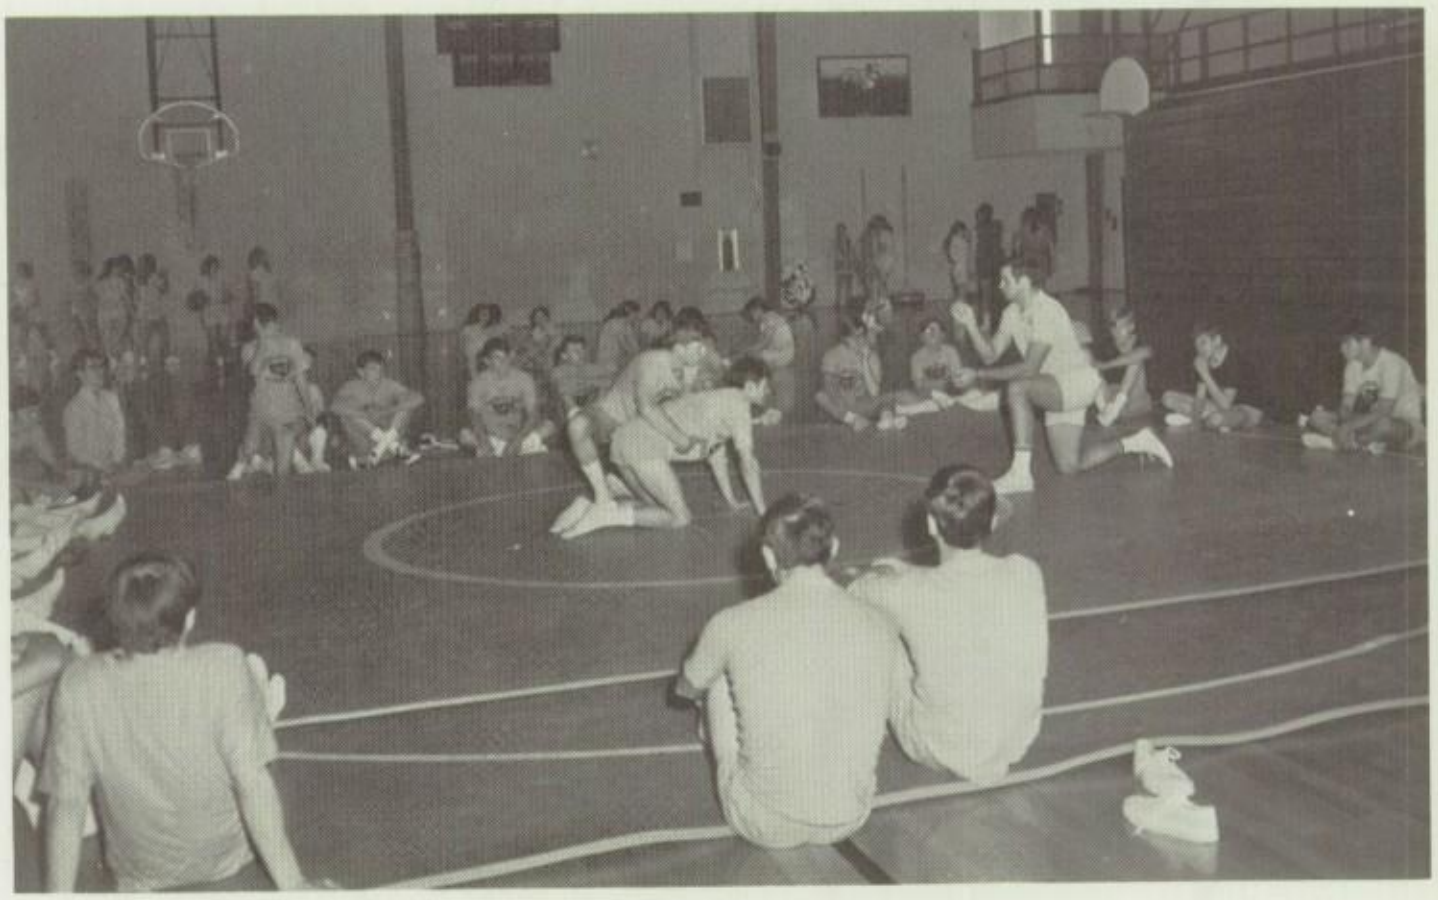
THSer's Develop Strong Bodies

Raymond Bradley

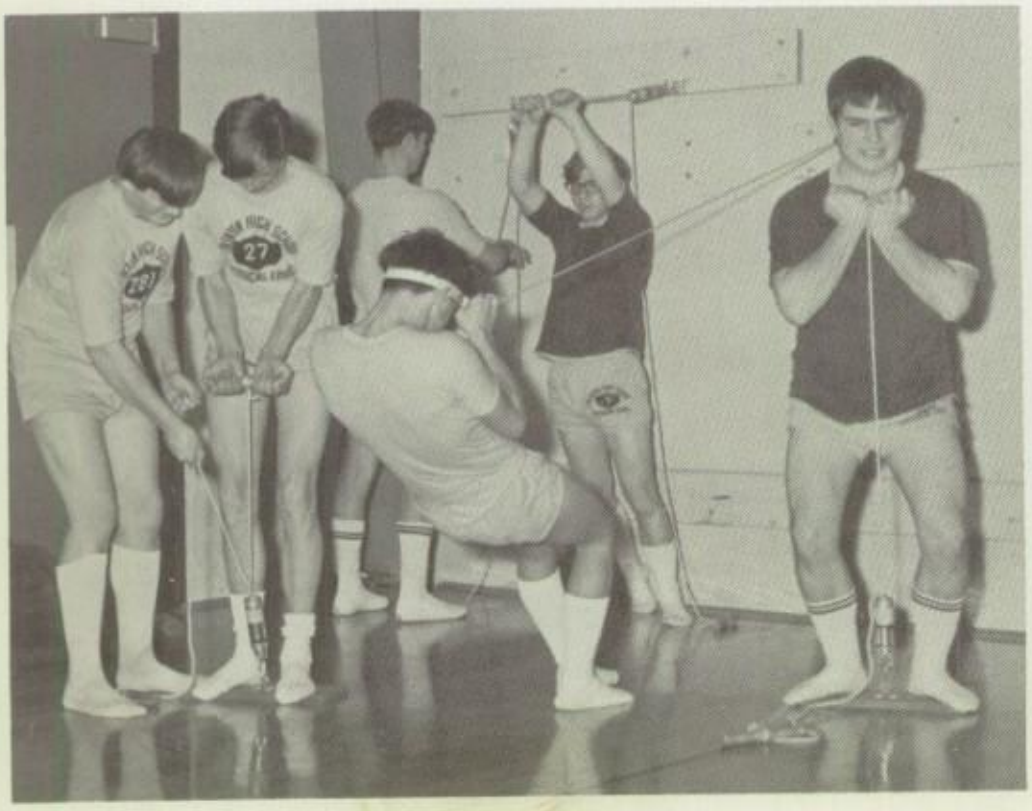
Mrs. Frances Wilson

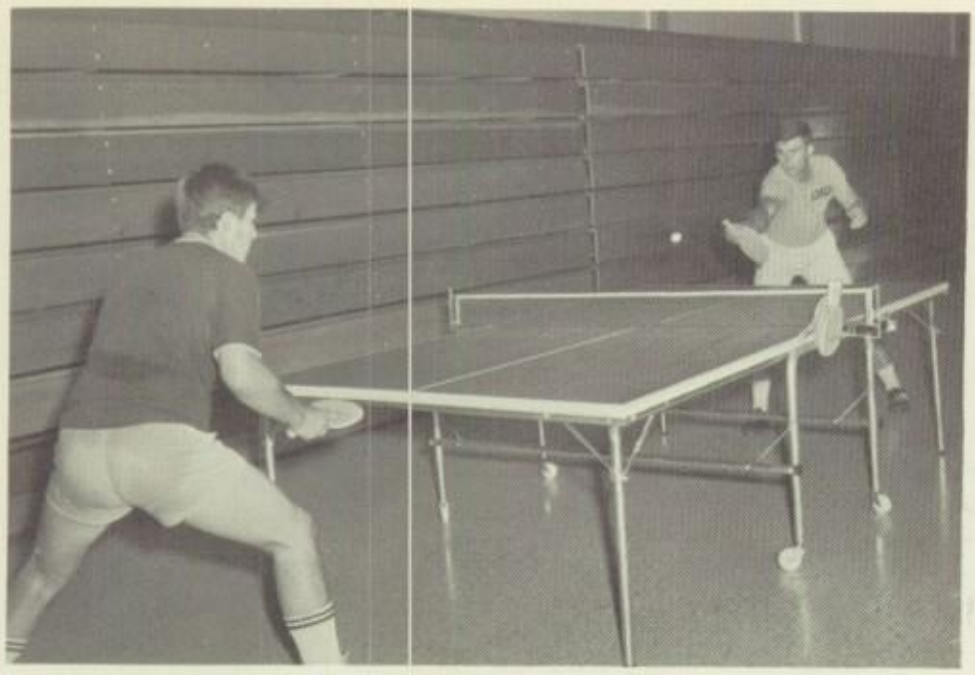


Ready wrestlers? Mr. Bradley explains a new hold.

Stan "the man" does his thing.

Ooh! That smarts. Isometric exercises build muscles.





What's the score now? 20 to 1?

P.E. is a cool class where students do not sit asking why air is necessary-they learn by blowing up a volleyball, outlasting a competitor in laps around the circle, or living through a basketball game. Participation in many sports clears cobwebs from the brain, speeds circulation, awakens alertness, and whets an enthusiasm for active fun-an antidote from the sitting necessary in many classes.

Basketball, volleyball, touch-football, tumbling, wrestling, dancing, badminton, and ping pong were among the free choices THS PE students could make in the block system initiated this year. New fitness equipment each term enlarges the possibilities for breadth and depth in the department. A large number of P.E. students receive physical fitness awards at the last assembly of the year.

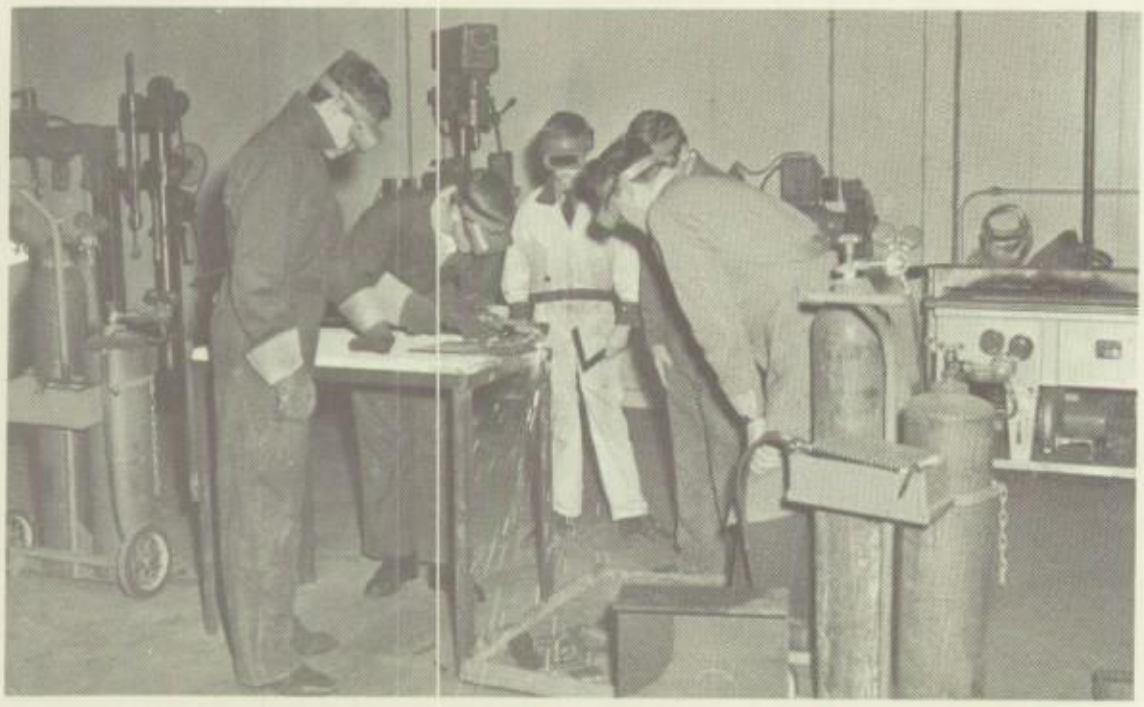
Stitch, rip, stitch, now it is right. New dresses and pant suits will soon grace THS halls and parties.

Mr. Walden holds the rapt attention of a marketing class.



Space men? No, Mr. Dannull's welding class as they learned to arc.

Mr. Bailey points out an error in Bob Barnes' geometric dimension drawing. David Heck is engrossed in his masterpiece.

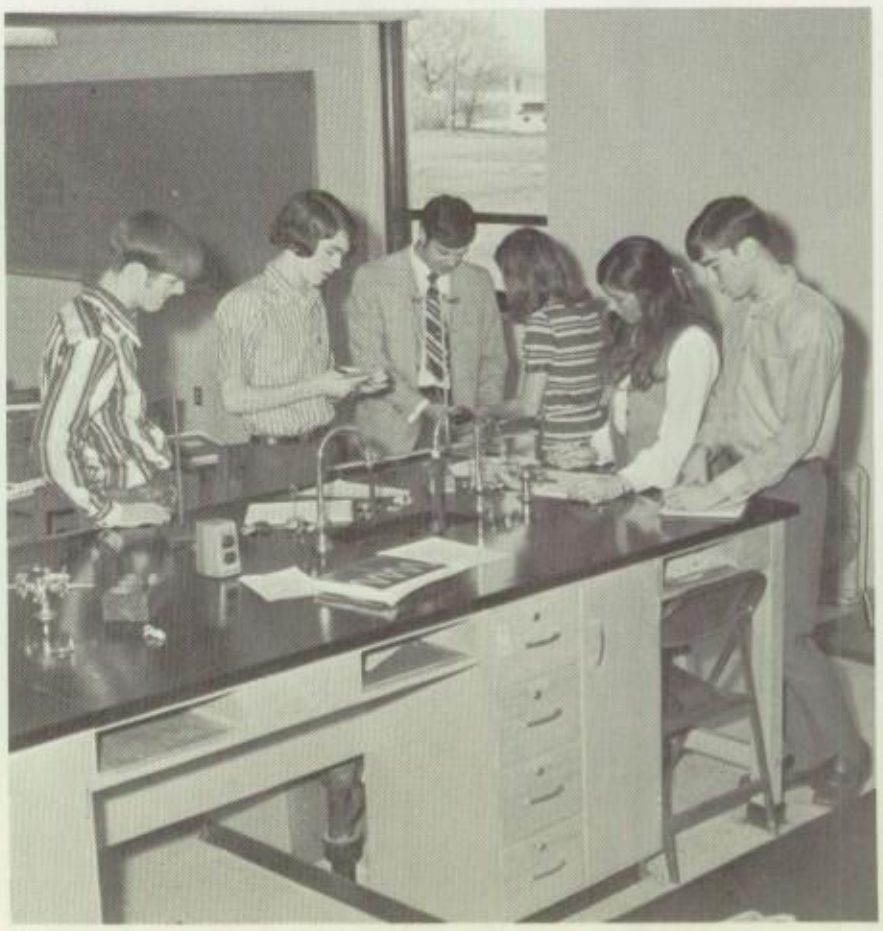
A party? Whip up a new dress, a new dessert. Guests? Prepare a delicious meal, decorate a room. Money? Babysit, sell handicrafted gifts. Home economics girls can perform these tasks and more because Mrs. Rose helps each student become a competent homemaker- the dream of every girl. Boys, this year, are learning some basic foods preparation problems. Competitive agriculture tests rural boys as they choose and care for farm animals or tend their crops. Courses covering selection, care, and marketing of farm products improve competency. Drafting and shop courses add skills that serve a man as he plans and maintains his home and farmstead. Competition in shows and contests brings satisfaction, money, and pride to many students, their parents, and the community.

THS Trains Future Scientists

Working with the spectograph proves to be rather entertaining!

This pendulum experiment proves: Mr. Messner and his physics class really swings!

Man's scientific and technological progress that raised his living standards beyond any dream of a few decades ago were the results of the sciences manipulated by knowledgeable men and women. The answers to health and economic threats resulting from misuse of this knowledge rests in the minds and hands of modern science, not negating progress, but redirecting chemical processes to bring into balance biological disruptions by using sophisticated mathematical computations. THS students sincerely desire through education, experimentation, and dedication to insure that future generations will live with such terms as eugenics, ecology, and technology safely because they are aware of the dangers and the blessings of the contributions of the sciences.



Mr. Arthaud explains the parts of a common plant; monocots and dicots.

Many Hands Keep THS Fed and Clean.

Serving apple crisp today is the work of Peggy Kirby, Willa Snow, Mary Ratliff, Irene Campbell, Leona Hann, and Jean Street. Doris Warren was at the dishwasher.

Mr. Robert Girdner stops cleaning the smudges from the office doors to glance at the photographer.

Don Edwards, Bob Campbell, and Wendall Lindsay, janitorial staff, stop at a stairwell before starting on the halls.

Beecher Shrum waves as he starts with the Chillicothe Technical School students.

City drivers: Doyle Brinser, Milton Myers, George Giles, and Art Arenson make several trips each day.

Transporting 1,150 students over 491 miles twice each day--fair or foul--is the trust of 15 bus drivers in Trenton R IX district. Add to this 52 trips to games, contests, and field trips, and the measure of their service becomes apparent. Rolling before dawn, returning at dusk, they accept responsibility for the attendance and safety of students.

A cup of coffee for a wayfarer, lunches for 600 people five days per week, and cooking special dinners for school organizations keeps THS food service ladies interested and busy.

Clean warm rooms, halls, cafeteria, and gym are a constant challenge to the maintenance staff.

Traveling over the district Ed Snidow, Robert Barnett, Woddy Draughn, R. M. Key, Mrs. John Anderson, Larry Warren, Verlin Meeks, Roger Thomas, and John Meeks safely bus THS students.

Future Farmers of America

Boys Serve Land and People

Camps, fairs, tractor pulls, judging trips, and conventions keep FFA boys and their sponsors, Mr. Dannull and Mr. Walden, busy to stay abreast of agricultural advances. FFA standards are high, requiring the blue-jacketed boys to excel in leadership, patriotism, and scholarship. Career guidance and comradship are keys to FFA success. The spring parent-and-son banquet fills the cafeteria where many awards are made to deserving students and cooperating townspeople.

Aggies Highlight Fall Season

Descending to swing into the first dance, the royal party stops to chat a minute.

A baled-straw tunnel and towering throne, cornstalks for decorations, and a goat to kiss set the scene in the Rock Barn for Barnwarming '70.

Girls driving their first nail, everyone dunking to bite an apple, a special few throwing pies, and girls sitting on their date's laps with a nippled bottle kept gales of laughter ringing.

Toni Stephens, freshman, was crowned queen by John McCloud, FFA president, during an impressive coronation ceremony.

Square dancing to lively music, and sipping cider and munching doughnuts made this an evening to remember for FFA boys, their guests and faculty.

Future Homemakers of America

School spirit is strong within the ranks of FHA. A bunking party--in the Home Ec. room--is proof of the love for THS. Rolls appear in the teachers' lounge with a note from FHA; working game stands, and planning bake and rummage sales are a few ways these happy girls earn money for their projects. Conventions and workshops broaden their homemaking concepts.

"Tell it like it is," on the drug scene guides FHA chapters nation wide. Trenton girls involve themselves in this crucial problem by attending seminars, inviting meeting speakers, and using their wholesome influence to reduce addiction among teenagers or to prevent a youth from starting down that road.

Distributive Education Clubs are national in scope, thus offering THS members connections and opportunities beyond the community. Competition often reaps rewards as students enter contests sponsored by DECA. Projects to finance convention trips and other activities expand the work experience standards of distributive education. Films, special rewards, and guests spice club meetings. Working in the community prepares DECA members for a constructive role in the business world upon graduation. Even a wall will move for these ambitious students sponsored by Mr. Brassfield.

Community-minded science students, sponsored by Mr. Arthaud and Mr. Messner, met each month to futher their knowledge, work on creative projects, plan fund-raising projects, and to have fun. A book fair netted a tidy sum and was used to help buy a pollution kit. Earth Day, a major project again this year, found these people testing the amount of water pollution present in this area. Cleanliness and beautification of the landscape were enhanced also on this day. Visiting a cyclotron in Lawrence, Kansas, highlighted the activities of the club. Science Club, an expanding organization, reflects man's consciousness of the role the sciences play in his daily life.

An eternal flame-the quest for knowledge-leads National Honor Society students into service of their school, examples for all to emulate. Fun and work fill the schedules of these NHS members. Hayrides, home parties (camouflaged as meetings),trips for a bit of culture, carol singing at Christmas time, and necessary fund raising plans for their service projects are some of their activities. An impressive initiation ceremony adds juniors and seniors, who pass the screening test, to the ranks of this worthy organization. The hall marks of character, scholarship, service, and leadership, exemplify the criterion of the National Honor Society.

Girls' Glee Club

Singing Songs of Praise

More than one hundred voices lifted in hymns of Thanksgiving, thrilled THS students, and the inspiring Christmas concert high lights Trenton's holy season. Spring is the time for singing, and our choral groups gladden the hearts of capacity crowds as Mr. Gerry Frankenfeld presents his final concert. The small choral groups add lilt to programs for service groups, answering requests for their catchy melodies on special occasions in the community.

Double Quartet

Sextette

Voices Rise in Glorious Song

Wanting to sing enough to work after school is the requirement for small group participation. Opportunities to perform come more often to these happy THS vocalists because of numbers. The Boys Double Quartet composed of Ben Gallup, Tom Trump and standing: Mike Babb, Terry Walker, Jeff Crawford, Tom Walker, Pat Pettegrew, and Rick Babb are happy singers. The Girls' Sextette with Cheryl Trump, pianist; Cathie Cox, Marsha Robbins, Sara Bonta, Sheila Serr, Beth Ann Bell, and Alice Hoffman lift sweet voices in song. Madrigal Singers include (kneeling) Tim Marvin, Mike Babb, Pat Pettegrew, (standing) Nancy Senf, Sue Lamme, Gary Barnett, Martha Hoffman, and Risë Kincaid.

Touring Spanish

Most often the study of Spanish is a Trenton High School student's first introduction to a new world of communication. Verbs can lead to greater pleasure, for once a month Club de Español offers diversion. Films, mementoes of trips to Mexico, games, and an occasional special food project contribute variety to their study.

Each year Nuestro Patio de la Fiesta is a spring treat. Good food prepared from native Spanish recipes, a visiting senorita, exotic table decorations, and creative costumes make it a gala affair.

School Life Travels Along Again

Standing, L. TO R: Debra Ellis, Sharon Rader, Teresa Reinholz, Rick Whitaker, Clifford Howe, Brent Muecke, Johny Bradshaw, Paul Costello. KNEELING-Steve Scott, Carol Critten, and Sam Blackburn.

Deadlines-fifteen-kept the Publications staffs moving. Journalism II was responsible for production supported by first-year journalism students. Gathering news, photographing school events, editing copy, correcting proof, pasting up, and delivering the Trentonian had its high and low moments.

Scheduling picture sessions, covering varsity sports for action shots, catching friends for snaps, slipping into classrooms for a quick snap, invading the administration offices to catch pictures, and going wherever people could be found enabled the staffs with their star photographer, Mr. Wright, to capture 1970-71 at THS for posterity. Fitted headlines, apt cutlines, and compact copy kept students busy-sometimes until late. Sly trips to the office, candy machines, the chess game, or ??? were also squeezed into this year--a happy year, and your Tawana with their best wishes.

STUCO OFFICERS FRONT: Rick Craig, treasurer; Wayne Pew, president; Buck Worland, vice-president. BACK: Carol Holt, secretary.

Forward looking students led by Wayne Pew, Buck Worland, and Mr. Dennis, sponsor, search for ways to move THS to the forefront of area schools. They pose proudly before one 1969-70 project. Homecoming, sponsored annually, found at least 300 students and faculty working toward a common goal thus guaranteeing success for Bulldog Rebellion and an evening of Autumn Enchantment. Truly an event to remember. Serving as a voice for students, problems are aired and solved, organizations are supported, additions to school furnishings are purchased, and changes in curriculum practices are effected.

To foster good sportsmanship at THS sports events and to aid, within the conference, a spirit of fair competition is a major goal of the Trenton High School Letterman Club. Membership in "T" Club is the coveted goal of every boy who enters any sports' arena for the glory of THS. They represent the finest men in competitive sports. Much is demanded of "T" Club members, and much is given in time, effort, and devotion. Coach Ray Bradley leads this aggressive club. A "T" Club jacket is worn proudly and says, "I am a good, tough, loyal THS athlete."

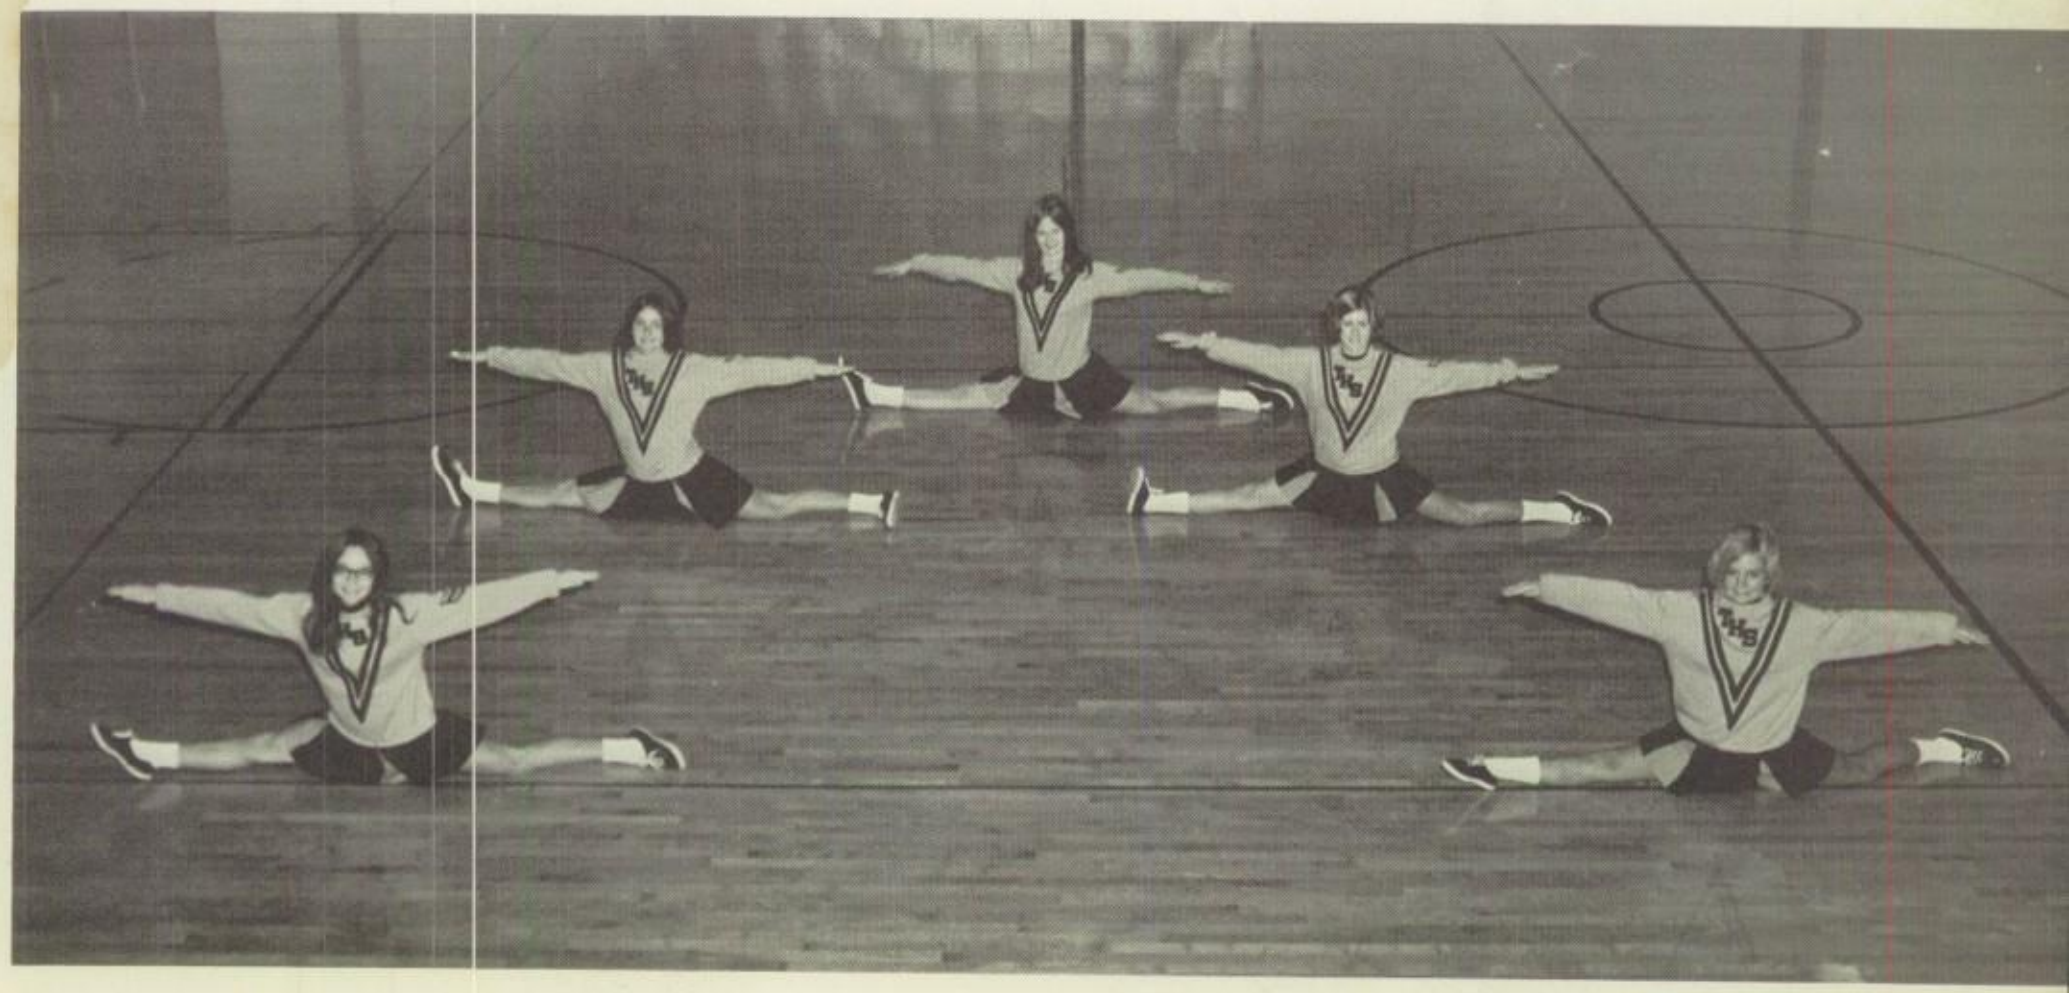
"We've got spirit," bespeaks the Trenton High School Pep Squad's true goal as they spark enthusiasm and support for all THS athletic events. Trips in buses, miles of banners and posters, hours of rehearsal for new yells and skits, and days spent selling pep badges and food for projects keep eighty-one pep squad girls and Mrs. Wilson busy all year.

Cheerleaders attend clinics to improve their skills and to bring new yells and fresh spirit to the games. Promoting fine Bulldog sportsmanship among THS fans in and out of school merits recognition.

Junior Varsity Cheerleaders

Doing their share always to lift the voices in cheers are (L TO R) Peggy Jobe, Barbi Jones, Linda Johnson, Bev Wade, Tonia Clark.



Psych Up With THS Cheerleaders

Thunder, Thunder, Thunderation
We're the Bulldogs delegation.
When we fight with determination,
We will cause a great sensation. . .
Thunderation!

As the year rolls by there is one group of girls involved in sports more than an onlooker may realize. Besides the countless games and assemblies where they cheer, they also make numerous bus trips.

How many ever notice the great posters in the halls and in the gym? These are another contribution of this peppey aggregation. Also remember the hundreds of hours spent on rehearsals in order to prepare fresh catchy yells and skits.

All these add up to a THS cheerleader's year dedicated to backing every boy entered in varsity sports.

The highest code of sports' ethics guides every cheerleader as she boosts pep squad morale, keeps an alert eye on the spectators, and bolsters the spirit of boys, coaches, and students.

Games won or lost-THS cheerleaders are there with chants, cheers, and courage for the next game.

Rousing music, following the director's sharp clear whistle, lifted spirits at football games, parades, and pep rallies. Homecoming halftime was enlivened by the Pom Pon girls' routine, directed by Mr. Buddy Hannaford, and the twirlers' fire baton presentation brought cheers from two thousand fans---the only reward band members asked for their hours of rehearsal in all kinds of weather. Concert season included a Christmas evening of fine music, and the spring concert is a treat for THS and the community. Plans for music contests, hosted by the Trenton High School this year, was a big project for the music department.

Rebellion Leads to Enchantment

Bright sunshine, a peppy band, fast-stepping Pom-Pon girls, beautiful royalty, attractive floats, decorated cars and windows, uniformed horsemen, and hundreds of cheering fans heralded Bulldog Rebellion, Bulldog Homecoming Day theme. At Friday's assembly, surprised faces (Alice Hoffman) and happy congratulations touched off the event. Stuffing floats (seniors (L) and juniors (Lower Right) filled last hours before the parade. Intent faces from the sidelines watched as the mighty Bulldogs battled valiantly to overcome the fast-moving Chillicothe Hornets in a fifty-two-year-old confrontation. Queen Alice and her court were recognized in a pre-game ceremony, and the Bulldog marching band presented a half time show for the huge crowd's enjoyment.

Queen Alice and Attendants Reign

A beautiful formal coronation ceremony thrilled a large audience as Debbie Turner and Monty Brown preceded Mark Endecott and Paul Costello to the throne. A fanfare--then Sonna Brown and Stacey Stratton, Sarah Tipton with Scott Murray, and Sheila Serr accompanied by Bill Lenhart entered the spotlighted area. A breathless pause--music--and Tonia Clark's, "Ladies and gentlemen, the 1970 Homecoming queen, Queen Alice Hoffman and her proud escort Wayne Pew," revealed her royal highness. Paul crowned Queen Alice and Mark presented roses and the game ball bestowing a kiss with her gifts. Flashes everywhere for pictures--the band picked up the tempo for dancing couples. A happy ending to a special day!

Bulldogs Post Successful Season

In this, the final year of the North Central Missouri Conference, the action has lost none of its traditional suspense. Although the rivalry between Trenton and their arch-enemy Chillicothe has somewhat subsided, it by no means stopped the Trenton Bulldogs from being a contender in the conference race. In tournament action, Trenton captured first in their home tournament by defeating Unionville. In the Chillicothe Invitational Tournament, Trenton could only muster a fourth place, but greater satisfaction was achieved by knocking out Chillicothe in the first round. Regionals proved to be a somewhat discouraging series as the Bulldogs drew a bye for the first round, beat Hamilton in the second round, only to be annihilated by LeBlond High School. Through the season, there were discouraging moments, but it can only be termed successful. The high moments far outweighed the disappointments.

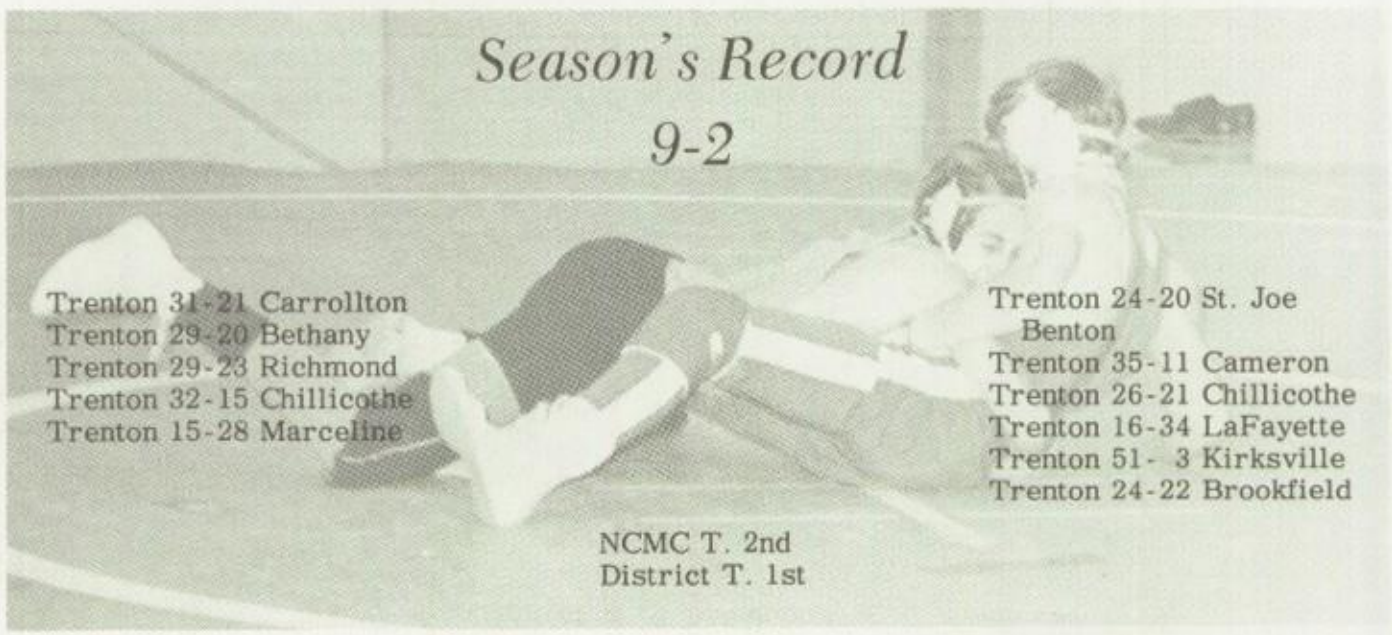
The agony of defeat.



Coach Ray Ricono with managers Warren Powell and Joe Foster.

"Pin him! Pin him!" begs a tense crowd straining forward to record the referee's slow count. A quick snap down! "Yea! Yea!"-and five points appear on the scoreboard. A decision, a draw-two added ways of pulling a victory for the matmen, mount the score.

Each weight class could boast strong contenders in dual matches, building an impressive win-loss record for THS grapplers. One man pitted against another of equal weight insures a keen competition based on wits, muscle, and agility.

A marked increase in attendance reflected the success of the Bulldogs, for nothing is so satisfying as an individual victory. Bulldog wrestlers performed consistently well advancing through dual matches, district, conference, regionals, and to state competition, upholding THS sportsmanship tradition; sometimes under difficult conditions.

Bulldog Spirit Rises

C.C. revival struck this year at T.H.S. as the Bulldogs worked toward a 4-3 season. Brookfield was the first victim on the list, with Kirksville and Chillicothe to fall in order. Marshall put the sting of defeat in the cross country boys' ears, but the Bulldogs bounced right back to beat Brookfield once again. Trenton rated well in the invitational meets; not taking first place, but finishing high in the standings.

Coach Dave Nachtweih was a first-year coach, and all the boys enjoyed working and running for him. Everyone hated to see him leave, but the cross country boys wish him the best of luck.

Though the season ended with a loss, it could certainly be termed a successful season, in terms of total wins, in interest, spirit, and enthusiasm.

Captain Brent Muecke and Coach D. Nachtweih.

Fourth Big Step Forward

Being a sophomore brings new experiences, exciting friends, a greater choice of classes, different teachers, and new opportunities for sports and organizations. After a few weeks they feel a part of THS. In one year they are true boosters and making names for themselves in all areas. Their enthusiasm is evident everywhere--in assemblies, at Homecoming, in games and Pep Squad, and at their class meetings. A first place float is one example of their talents. A football quarterback, a tall basketball player, top wrestlers, good musicians, and honor roll students further prove that the sophomores are already leaders in THS. They make money and spend it for parties, hoping to save a bit for Junior-Senior Prom, too. Three years of fun and hard work will fly by.

Being a junior-a most important milestone along the long and winding road toward success-includes superstars in sports, studies, and extra-curricular activities. It means more freedom in making decisions at home, in social and school life, plus a deeper quest for self-individuality-for a purpose and goal in life, for FUN.

Choosing classes, seeing old friends and making new, Homecoming, games, club meetings, intra-murals, tests, tests, tests, parties, snow, ice, grade cards, dating, the first car, ordering the big rings, planning the Prom and next year's senior blasts . . . These are only a few of the events making up the kaleidoscope of excitement and big dreams that is the junior year.

Senior Class Officers

President Bill and his officers choose a committee.

A long and winding road leads to senior graduation, another turn to wider brighter vistas for all.

Memories from kindergarten through the grades, junior high, and high school flood the mind-an arrow piercing an ear, being spanked three times in one year, sitting on a compass and a thumb tack, birthday parties, games in mud and snow, homecomings, sabotaging lockers, zonking lunches, junior-senior proms, lettering in sports, and meeting deadlines.

To measure knowledge gained-or lost-would be impossible. May it be enough for each senior to lead a satisfying life along the way.

Man

To Man, He is the earth, He is the creation,
If only he'd wake up, he'd find the creator, the sensation,
He arises nature, he defies its course,
If only he'd wake up, he'd realize it's life's course.
Man is supreme, still he finds life is not light,
Man is against war, yet he will fight,
Man is for peace, yet if he could
Would he love his fellow man as he should;
Or would he still hate him for his bad,
The true answer 'tis really sad,
For man is how he is, not to be changed,
If only he'd wake up, it might be arranged
To live in peace and harmony with his fellowman,
To live as this he would have to answer as only he can,
For it's our world and we have a choice,
To make it good and be able to rejoice
Or go on with a war there, a riot here,
And hope civilization will live another year;
For he can have it as he may
If only he'd wake up and hope, love, and pray.

Gordon D. Crawford, poem written two days before his death in 1969.

Mrs. Volk knows how to swing at Bee Gee's.

Dearest Martin,

Had to put that in for a bit of spice. You are a character to know and I suppose I've been fortunate to have you in study hall. Seriously, you are awfully cute. Good luck always.

Sincerely,

Martin -
It's really been something this year in Biology. I say practically drove me crazy a couple of times but somehow I managed to pull through. I'm gonna miss you guys next year - all your jokes and pestering me. Archaic - He-ll probably miss you too. Well, take care of all THS and always remember the great class of 71 Seniors

Love ya,

Martin,
a cool head who had a lot of fun with in typing especially including the rest of the gang. Hate for this summer and don't do anything I wouldn't

Martin,
Well, the year is over and I sure don't know how I would've made it without you & Tom in Biology! Try to stay out of trouble,
Martin, & have a good summer!
